Turn the Epson printer OFF and make sure paper is not jammed inside the unit. If you have printer with CISS installed make sure the printer carriage can go left and right easy. Make sure the upper scanner part of printer is closed tightly. Nothing prevents to close it tightly. That initialization routine that gets run on Start Up checks the entire units function before completeing without an error.(You might have heard the noises, they are the carriages being sent to their home positions and making different sensors activate.) If you use CISS - there maybe ink tubes preventing to move carriage from left to right. So we suggest You to install original Epson ink cartridges and run the printer. If there will be NO error - the reason is the CISS - installed not correctly. Access the cartridge loading area while off and move the carriage away from the stops, just an inch is needed. Lifting slightly, it should move easily, if it appears sluggish at first, the ink collection cup is gummed up and needs cleaning. The paper path has sensors that are mounted opposite the size adjustment slide on the paper tray. Usually a small opto-sensor, it can be blocked with dust. The solution is to disassemble the printer and clean all optical sensors, paper feed sensors, encoder strip and disc encoder. Usualy the Service Manual for Your printer model wil be helpful while disassembling the printer and assembling back. I bought this printer last year and never touched it or took it out of the box until now. The printer is brand new. I set up the internet connection without any problem. However, I started printing and all of a sudden, the printer turned off by itself. I tried turning it back on but would not turn on. I even tried changing plugs to see if the plug is the problem. What can I do to fix this printer? I got my Epson wf-2540 over a year ago, it's worked fine but a few weeks ago it kept saying "printer error please turn off and on again". If you did that a few times it worked. One time it seemed like it wouldn't so I turned it on and opened the top to see the cartridges, and it worked then. Now no matter what you do it won't work. Someone said on some other forum with someone else having a similiar problem that the cartridge thing was getting stuck because there was ink where it was supposed to go at the "home" position. I opened mine up and it does appear to get stuck. Right before it finishes turning on it goes to the right and stops just before it goes to where it does when it finishes, and says the printer error thing. If I push it over it seems to go fine. Then after I push it over and turn it back on it still does it. I can't find any good guides on cleaning whatever needs cleaned. I just randomly sprayed compressed air all over the inside and where the paper goes and comes out and the top ADF detector thing. It works now!
